

E. Rationale

The Heritage Bay digital experience was designed around the idea that users should first understand the cultural value of batik before viewing it as a fashion product. Instead of beginning with a catalogue, the experience takes users on an interactive storytelling journey that explores batik's history, artisans and modern evolution, allowing them to build an emotional connection with the craft before discovering Heritage Bay's collection.

The experience is divided into six chapters, creating a clear narrative flow from introduction to reward. Users begin by uncovering the meaning behind batik motifs before travelling through its historical origins, learning how Indonesian artisans preserved and refined the craft across generations. They are then introduced to the artisans who continue to practise batik today, followed by an interactive comparison between traditional and contemporary batik, demonstrating how Heritage Bay preserves heritage while making it relevant for modern lifestyles.

To encourage active participation, the experience incorporates gamification through a motif collection system. As users progress through each chapter, they unlock Heritage Bay motif prints, motivating them to continue exploring the content instead of simply scrolling through information. Completing the journey rewards users with an exclusive discount, creating a satisfying conclusion that naturally transitions from learning to shopping.

The visual design reflects Heritage Bay's identity as a contemporary brand rooted in tradition. Warm earth tones (surrounded by same Heritage Bay's dark brown, beige, black, white) the textured backgrounds and full-screen imagery evoke handcrafted textiles and natural dyeing processes, while clean typography and generous white space ensure the interface remains modern and accessible. Documentary-style photographs of artisans reinforce authenticity, helping users with short attention span appreciate the craftsmanship and human stories behind every garment.

Overall, every design decision supports Heritage Bay's brand mission of preserving Indonesian batik while presenting it in a contemporary and engaging way. By combining storytelling, education, interaction and commerce, the experience transforms Heritage Bay from a clothing retailer into a cultural storyteller, encouraging users to value not only the finished product but also the heritage, craftsmanship and people behind every piece.
