

Persona:

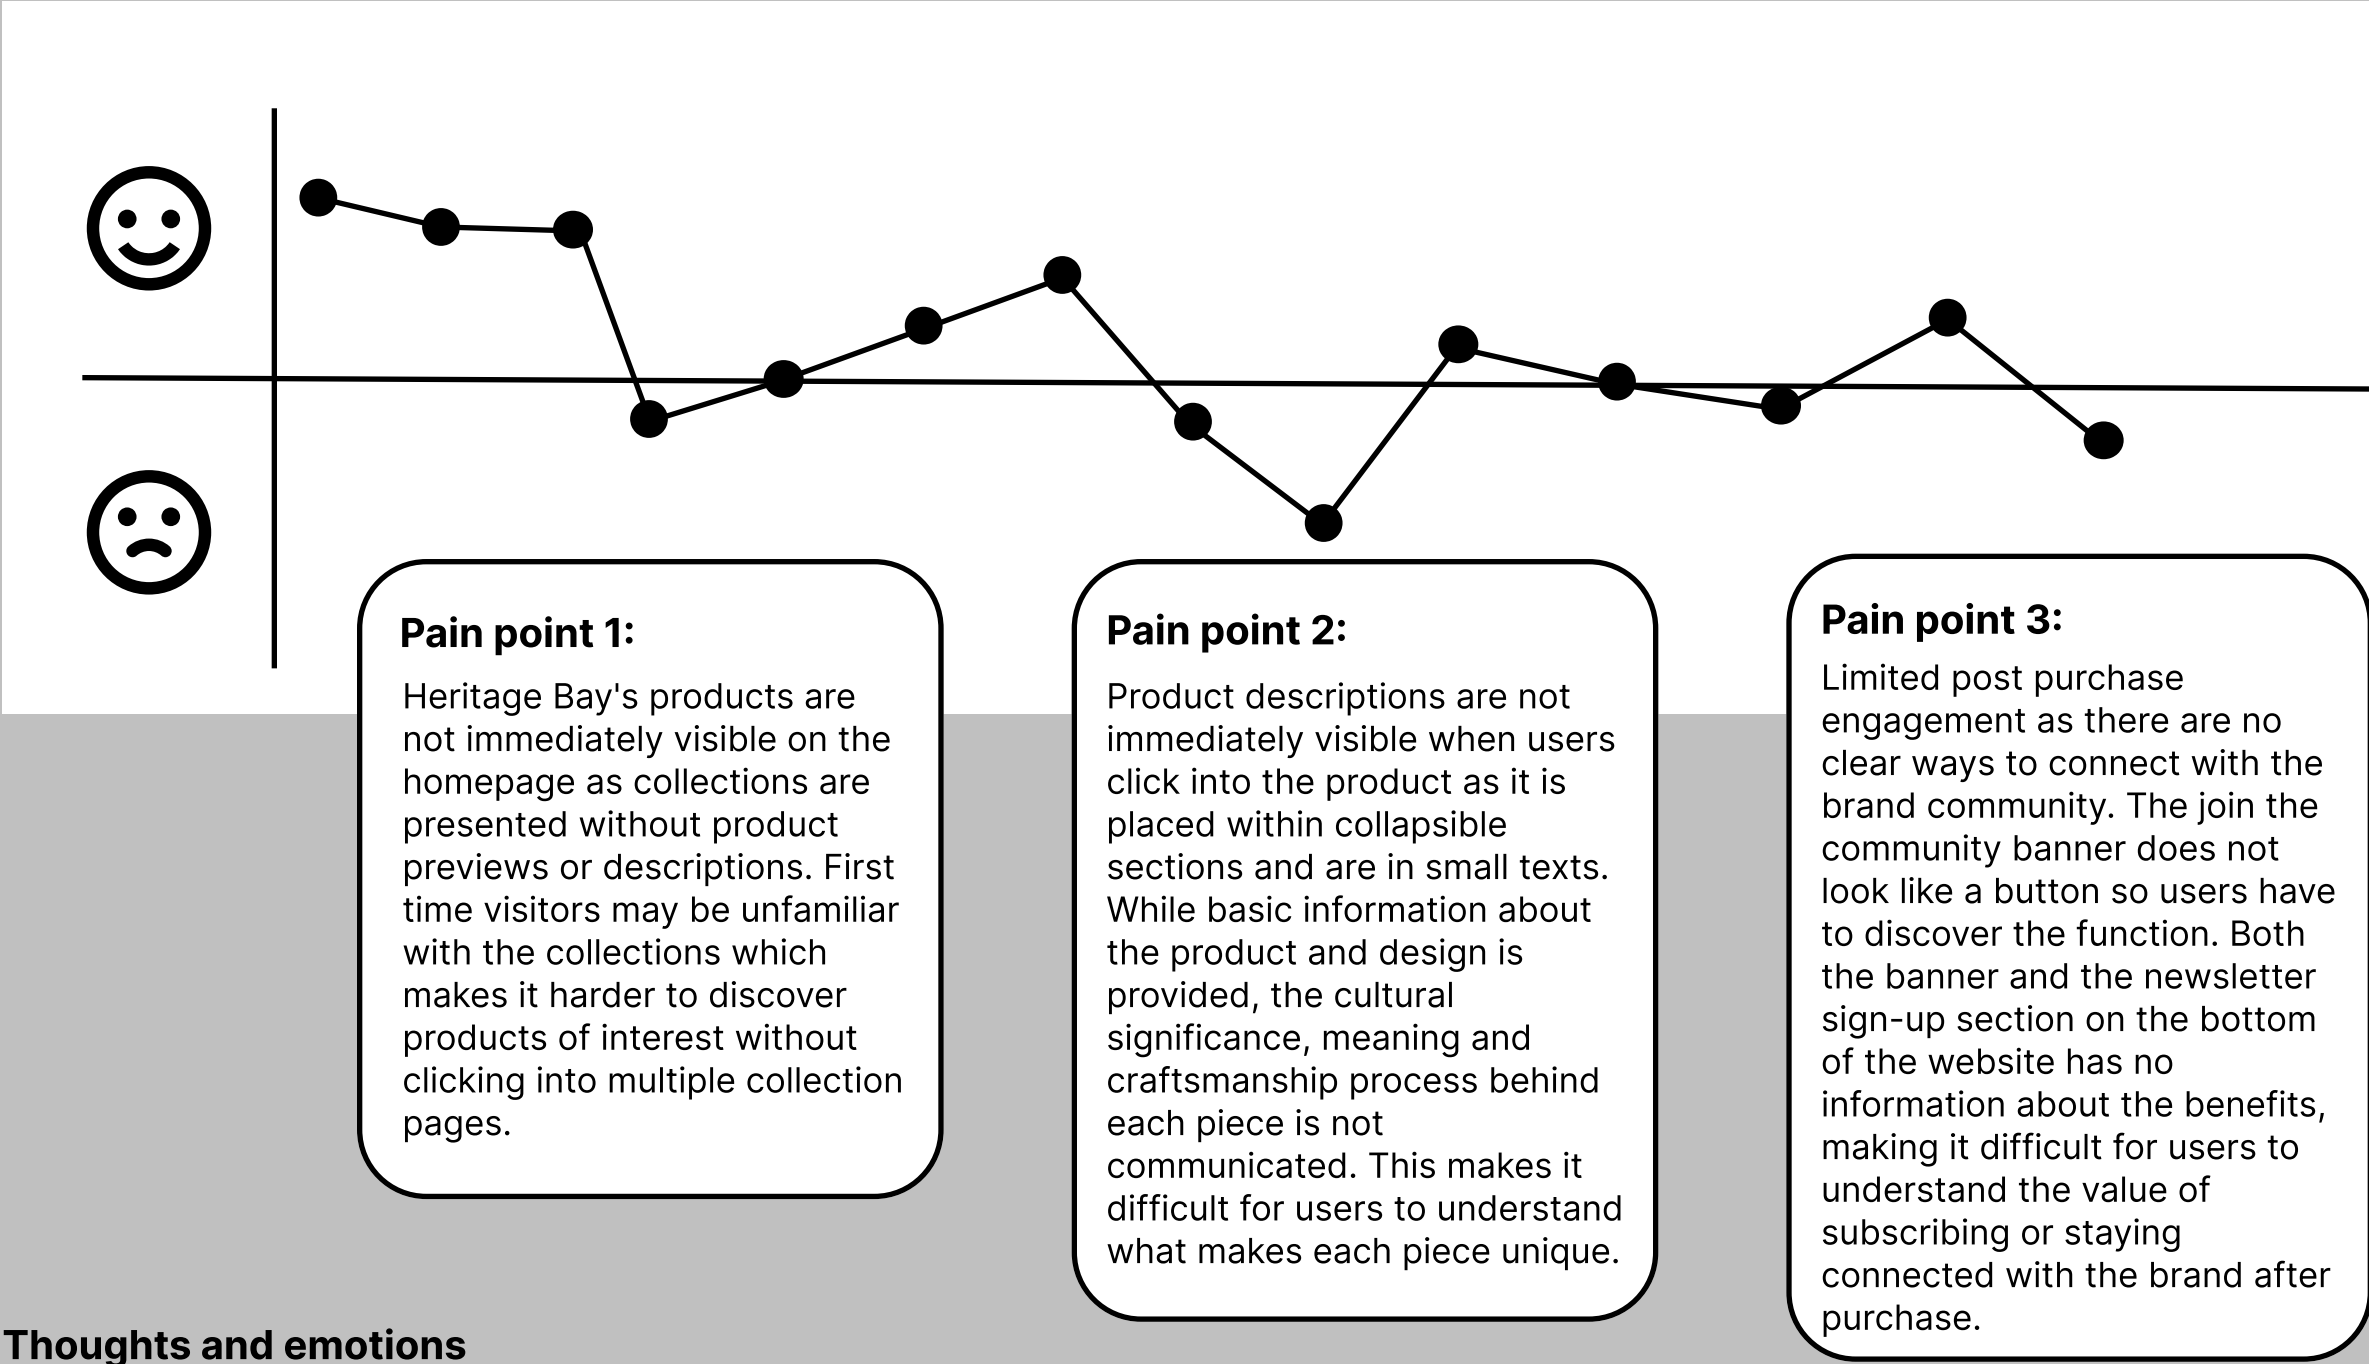

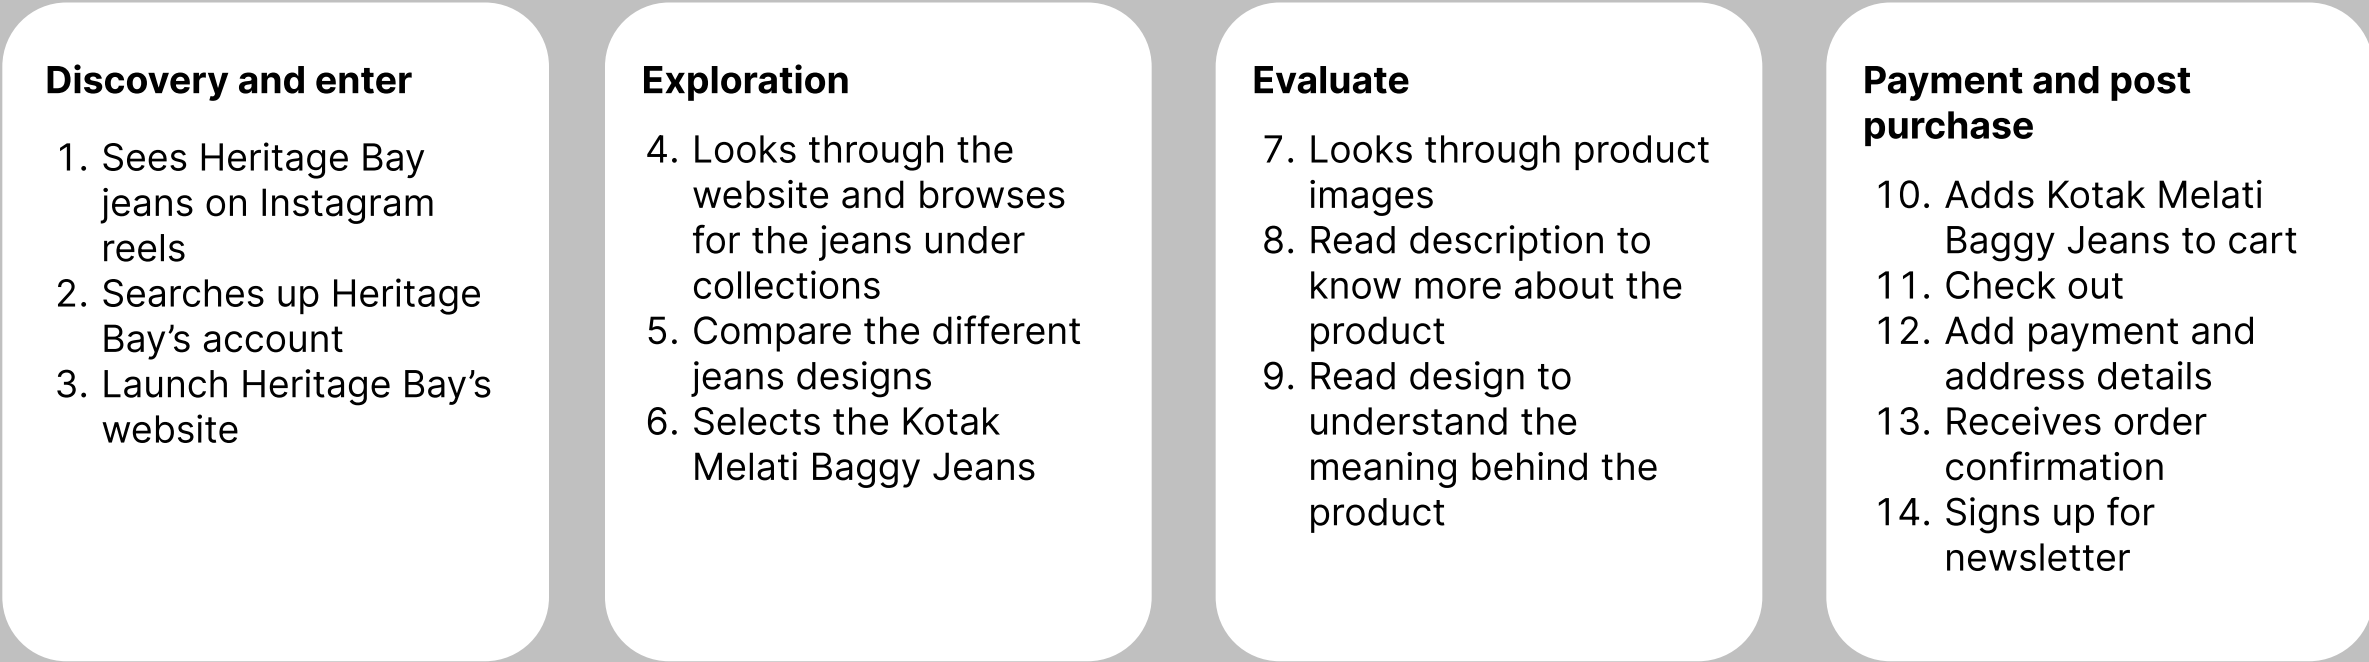

Name: Megan
Age: 22
Occupation: University student pursuing a degree in social work

"I enjoy supporting local brands but I want to better understand the story and craftsmanship behind the products I buy."

Megan typically likes browsing for clothes on social media or online, she often supports local brands and small businesses, enjoys going to creative events like Public Garden and Artbox and also values unique and meaningful products.

Scenario:
Megan comes across an influencer wearing jeans from Heritage Bay while scrolling on Instagram reels and is drawn to the unique design. She decides to find out more about the jeans and looks up Heritage Bay’s instagam and clicks into the website. However, while browsing the website, Megan finds it difficult to understand the meaning behind the jeans and the process of creating it. She eventually decides to purchase the Kotak Melati baggy jeans as she likes the unique design and because she enjoys supporting local brands.

| 1. Provide clearer collection previews and descriptions to help users understand what each collection represents or entails before clicking into it. Can highlight featured products or best-selling items to improve product discoverability. | 2. Integrate Trace Your Craft into the product browsing experience by allowing users to explore the product's inspiration, artisans, craft process and cultural significance through an interactive experience rather than static text only. | 3. Create clearer and more visible post-purchase engagement opportunities by inviting customers to join Heritage Bay's telegram community or newsletter and communicating the value of joining the community where they can continue exploring product stories, events and workshops to encourage longer-term engagement with the brand. |
